THE KEYS TO REDEVELOPMENT

Redevelopment projects come in different forms, from the mom-and-pop, single building development, to professional developers rehabilitating large scale properties and multiple buildings at a time.

The key to successful projects is public-private partnerships and a common method of operation.

Learn how cities and town governments, Main Street directors and developers can work collaboratively to put the deals together, from concept through construction and bring redevelopment projects to fruition for long term operation.

This discussion-style session will feature two long serving Main Street Managers that have developed downtown buildings, and two professional developers that have made significant investments in North Carolina downtowns across the state.
